

The Pied Piper Song

I am a traveling minstrel who has wandered far and wide to you
to sing, sing, sing,
a lovely song
to make your day seem not so long.

Traveling minstrels, as a rule,
wear clothing very colorful
and sing, sing, sing,
a lovely song
come, join me in merry dance.

Is life treating you so unkind?
Wolf waiting by your door?
Come, sing and dance you'll find
they will be gone forevermore.

I am a traveling minstrel who
is known as the Pied Piper, too.
I play, play, play
a magical song.
Rats can't help but come along.

I am a traveling minstrel and
I help the people throughout the land
I'll play, play, play,
my musical charm.
The rats will bring you no more harm.

(From the musical "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" by G. Schröder)
(Aus dem Musical "Der Rattenfänger von Hameln" von G. Schröder)